
Title: Un mot, A song, Beware o foolish one

Author: A Servant

To ye who have come
we say: read these pages well. The Altar of Death will be harsh
with failure.

The following riddle gives the clue. Chose wisely.

Note: the
runes in the Book Of Passage are arranged
to go down then
across as this:

| /|
|/ |

Starting with .1.

I am here, I am there never sure of my
step.

What may cross me
cannot walk.

I am life and yet I am
death.

Songs of joy, poems of
love, melodies of hurt
and loss,

All these have been written about me.

My mistress is never
in my reach yet her
touch moves me.

To and fro without fail. Be careful where
I go.

Be wary, for the very thing that gives ye
sway over me will kill Ye the first chance it gets.

I am beautiful, I am
powerful and men
both covet my beauty
And riches whilst loathing the sorrow I contemptuously send them to.

Always coming and
going.. never waiting

on any save my
mistress the moon.

1. I am the Sun rising
and falling.
2. I am the Paladin in battle.
3. I am Life earnt in Death.
4. I am the battle,
always anew.
5. I am last after the first.
6. I am ugliness after
beauty.
7. I am a star, shining
bright.
8. I am the wind
forever there.
9. I am Darkness of the night.
10. I am the ocean tide.
11. I am Light after Dark.
12. I am Sadness for the loss of Happiness.
13. I am Love returned
for kindness.
14. I am retribution
come to pay back
Deceit.
15. I am the strength of the victor standing
tall over his enemies.
16. I am the first and will not be the last.